

Wendy Kukulies-Smith is a Teaching Fellow at the ANU College of Law. She has taught in Criminal Law and Procedure, Legal Theory and Foundations of Australian Law. Wendy is currently the editor of the 'Principles and Practice' component of the Commonwealth Sentencing Database. The Database was launched by the Minister for Home Affairs at the 2008 Sentencing Conference and is accessible from the National Judicial College of Australia website. The 'Principles and Practice' component was developed by Wendy and is the result of a collaborative partnership between the ANU College of Law and the National Judicial College of Australia. It provides judicial officers with concise commentary on federal legislative provisions and sentencing principles with links to relevant legislation and case law. Wendy's research interests include sentencing, criminal law and justice, gender, legal history and theories of punishment. She is undertaking a PhD entitled 'Punishing Parents: the effect of family or dependants on sentencing in Australia'.